

Synopsis February 2009:

In a far away land, just off the London orbital, there is a place where fairies, giants and alchemists exist...

Well obviously some of you may have been there but I doubt it. Blink and you've missed it. Sneeze and it's gone. It is the place where two worlds meet: the one you can see and one that you can't or grew up and forgot was there.

Our story begins in the sleepy village of Ventilador with a King who has become gravely ill, his heart pulses with sadness and the only cure is to find the answer to true happiness. The quest to find this answer falls into the hands of a travelling theatre Company. From wicked witches to a power mad queen, from duelling knights to swash buckling pirates, each person holds a clue to the answer they seek.

In a parallel world of an urban London estate, Grace stares out of her classroom window wondering how she will escape her boredom. She is in terrible danger; she has no idea that she is sought after by the colossal powers of the evil Queen and that she will become the key to unlocking the answers. When the two worlds meet, Grace's journey will uncover not only the secret key to her own identity but a fate beyond her wildest dreams.

Join Shed@ThePark for their fantastical journey filled with music, dance and exuberance; another original performance that will promise the audience a night to remember. Through song, puppetry and multimedia the amazing Shed@ThePark theatre Company will truly demonstrate that the Arts is for everyone, that we believe in everyone and create performance with everyone. For when over 100 creative young people who have extraordinary talents come together, the experience is magical.

We believe that anything is possible.